MILITIA FACES TRIAL FOR LIFE

Recent Pet of Congress Now Meets Strong Opposition on Ground of Inefficiency Shown in Border Service.

PECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL! Washington, Dec. 15 .- The national mard, only a few months ago the pet my establishment.

President Wilson originally stood town! settlement, open to all the treatile former Secretary of War Linderfort to check anti-French boycott demonstrations at Tientsin. is message to congress fust a Year

When congress convened last year. however, it was evident that the old strength of the militia with the legis-foreign minister and Earon Hayashi, afors had not diminished. Led by the Japanese minister, pending the Representative James Hay, always disposition of the Tientain dispute. champion of the guard and chairman of the military committee of the house, the pro-militia faction soon had the supporters of the administration policy on the run. President Wilson, taking the view that his coninental army scheme was hopelessiy beaten and seeking for the best plan ossible of adoption, switched his backing to Hay with the result that Mr. Garrison resigned.

Border Service a Factor.

As a result there was a veritable stampede of congress to the side of the militia. The militia pay bill and other provisions designed to place the footing of the regular army were

Now there is a distinct change in the situation and the most potent branded on left thigh. cause for this is the experience of the militia itself. Nearly six months on the alkali wastes, with all the tedious duties of a regular soldier and nothing o fight but rattlesnakes and sandurs, has caused much of the militia hankering for federal service to evaporate, and has furnished abundant argument against federalization. has already announced he will offer s bill to undo the work of federalization accomplished in both the Dick law of 1912 and the Hay-Chambe. lain law of the last congress. Representative Hay, arch champion of the goard, is gone, while Senator Blair Lee of Maryland and others who were equally ardent in behalf of the guard were defeated for re-election in their states in November. The apparent decline of the guard as a political power has brought many men out against it, who were previously in favor of federalization.

Mestige Silent on Preparedness.

It is significant in this connection that President Wilson makes no mention of preparedness in his annual message to congress. It also is stated now that the army leaders have succeeded in winning Secretary of War Newton D. Baker to their way of thinking and that, sometime before the military appropriation bill is considered, there will be a statement from the army heads that will deal the militia a body blow. The chief complaint against the militia, which its opponents bank on,

is the claim that 40 per cent of the guardsmen have refused to take the oath pledging themselves to federal service. This applies only to men who were in the organization before the Hay-Chamberlain bill was passed. Senator Borah bases his opposition to the militia on the ground that it failed as a body to take the federal eral government, although under a divided control, is bound to become a political machine. He will charge that federalization is really beneficial only to the officers who draw the big pay, many of them from both state WANTED-Boarders on ranco and nation, and that federalization was never favored by the rank and

If they can destroy the militia and at the ame time prove inability of the regdar army to secure its quota of votintary enlistments, they believe uniersal service is inevitable.

militia, specifically, is drawing pay at the rate of $16,000 per year.

Advocates of militia federalization on the other hand will charge that period of one year, reasonable to responsible present agitation against it is the party. J.M. Journal office, or phone III. in the other hand will charge that result of a carefully worked out scheme, in which the call to the border was the big scheme.

The state militia regiments stand to lose a stake of more than $60,000,000 annually if the federalization law is repealed. In accordance with the law, on a basis of the present militia personnel of about 130,000, the war department has asked $61.998,200 for the national guard service during the fiscal year of 1917.
